Description:

The Time Use Week (TUW) is a global event dedicated to promoting knowledge and inspiring case studies in time policies. Researchers, political institutions, social and economic organisations, and citizens from around the world have participated to foster dialogue across diverse fields of expertise and experiences, aiming for improved social organization of time. The tenth edition of TUW has taken place from 21st to 25th October, with international days being 21st and 22nd, in Barcelona, and has been themed “Advancing towards the Right to Time for Everyone”.

TUW 2024 aims to comprehensively approach the right to time. It engages specialized audiences such as institutions, social stakeholders, and the research community. Additionally, this year’s event is committed to including activities and initiatives accessible to the non-specialised public by different organisations in the world.

The focal point of the first day (21st) has been updating the Action Plan of the Barcelona Declaration on Time Policies. This provides a collective framework for organisations already committed since 2021, as well as newcomers and those initiating efforts towards better time management. The updated plan outlines specific commitments for the 2024-2026 period.

After fully implementing the actions foreseen in the 2022-2023 Action Plan, the new action plan sets objectives in four work areas 1) make effective the right to time from local and regional bodies to improve the equality and individual and collective well-being, 2) fostering the connection between the world of time use research and public time policies, especially now that we are facing a new wave of results from time use surveys time, 3) implement key actions to achieve a balanced organization of time dedicated to work and personal and family life and 4) advance the recognition of the right to time, especially in the field of equality, introducing the debate directly into the United Nations system, as well as in other Latin American regional organizations.

On the second day (22nd), the Assembly of the Local and Regional Time Network was celebrated, alongside other conferences and discussions to implement time policies. During the assembly, the roadmap for 2025 was discussed, including the planned activities for the project Time4All 2.0. that has been recently awarded.

The assembly also welcomed new members to the network, that has been enhanced by 15 new international institutions, such as Bogotá, Buenos Aires and the South Tyrol region. Moreover, the 2025 World Capital of Time was voted and awarded to Bogotá.

Participants attending the Week in person had access to various on-site activities, including workshops and networking opportunities. Additionally, for the first time, TUW 2024 introduced a collaborating organisation badge for entities interested in hosting initiatives during the event.

KEY HIGHLIGHTS OF TIME USE WEEK:

More than 350 people from all over the world will participate

Participation of more than 40 international speakers, both in person and online

More than 20 specialized sessions aimed at policymakers, researchers, and interested organizations.

Implementation of 50 transformative initiatives throughout Catalonia by organizations in the social and productive field. We highlight:

- 3 pilot tests for reducing working hours, such as the Association of Large Families of Catalonia-FANOC of 37.5 hours, the Metropolitan Strategic Plan of Barcelona and the Federation of Labor Cooperatives of Catalonia of 32 hours.
- 7 pilot tests of flexible working hours measures, such as the Confederation of Autonomous Workers of Catalonia - CTAC or One Tandem.
- 2 pilot tests of measures or permits, beyond those established by the regulations (Federación Española de Asociaciones Pro-Lactancia Materna and Consejo Nacional de las Mujeres de España)
- 5 initiatives to implement the time policy self-assessment tool (such as Marinva or Espai Ambiental SCCL, among others announced on the web)

The Event Description Sheet can be downloaded from the website clicking on the box “Check the event report” at the front page of the website (www.timeuse.barcelona/tuw24/).

The full programme can be consulted on the website (see below) and recordings for each day can be found below. On the website, we showcase them by event:
